

Agatha Christie
The Girdle of Hyppolita

Hercule Poirot is a very good investigator and is on his way to France. But before he left inspector Japp stopped him and gave him a mission. His mission was to find out where Winnie King is.

He talked with inspector Japp, who told him that she was having lunch and the next moment she wasn't there anymore. He talked with Miss Pope, too. Soon after he talked with Miss Pope, Winnie was found and he stopped investigating.

After Poirot talked with Miss Pope he got clear picture about this famous establishment. He said that this famous establishment was using kids – girls to smuggle things from England to France. That was the last sentence before he left the house. So this mission was accomplished.