ARE WARS REALLY NECESSARY?

No. I think that wars are really needless, since solving the problems on a violent way is not the only way to reach an agreement.

Wars are started because of political misunderstandings. They are started by unwise politicians, who cannot solve problems on a peaceful way. However, in wars politicians do not suffer. Unfortunately, victims are usually civilities who suffer heavy losses. Politicians who are responsible for causing the war do always just take care of their own safety. What is more, with war and destruction the problem is not solved. I think it is just the way of showing the power and supremacy to the other country.

I am convinced that every quarrel between countries can be solved without a war and an agreement can be reached with negotiations as well.