

Communication among young people

Today young people can communicate on many different ways. With the development of network we get new ways to communicate with each other, but it wasn't all ways like it, once the post and personal communication were the only one available. Today we have a lot of different types of nonpersonal communication such as email, messenger, IRC, SMS, phone, etc. So I'll introduce and tell a bit of each one.

Verbal communication

Verbal communication requires the use of words, vocabulary, numbers and symbols and is organized in sentences using language.

Body language

Such messages can be communicated through gesture, body language or posture, facial expression and eye contact, object communication such as clothing and hairstyles.

An Internet forum

Is a facility on the World Wide Web for holding discussions and posting user generated content.

Internet Relay Chat (IRC)

Is a form of real-time Internet chat or synchronous conferencing. It is mainly designed for group (many-to-many).

Instant messaging

Is a form of real-time communication between two or more people based on typed text. The text is conveyed via computers connected over a network such as the Internet. (most popular MSN Messenger).

Short Message Service (SMS)

Is a service available on every mobile phone, which permits the sending of short messages between mobile phones.

Electronic mail

Is a store and forward method of composing, sending, storing, and receiving messages over electronic communication systems.

Telephone

Is a telecommunications device which is used to transmit and receive sound across distance.